

EXTRA
TO A ROYAL BRIDE.

The Earl of Fife Was Brilliantly Wedded To-Day.

All England Wishing Joy to the Bridal Pair.

Rain Dulls the Day, but Does Not Mar the Happiness of the Occasion.

(SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
LONDON, July 27.—(BULLETIN).—The marriage of Her Royal Highness, the Princess Louise Victoria Alexandra Dagmar, oldest daughter of the Prince of Wales, to Alexander William George Duff, Earl of Fife, Knight of the Thistle, took place at noon to-day in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace.

The groom's best man was Mr. Horace Farquhar. The bridesmaids were Princess Victoria of Wales, Princess Maud of Wales, Countess Fedora Gleichen, Countess Victoria Gleichen, Countess Helen Gleichen, Princess Victoria of Teck, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein and Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein.

STORY OF THE WEDDING.
An Event of Marked Brilliance Despite the Unpropitious Day.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)
LONDON, July 27.—All London turned out bright and early this morning to witness as much of the royal wedding as was possible for those not born in the purple, and though the weather was rainy and the sun obscured, the streets in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace and those through which the various bodies of the bridal party were to pass, were gay with thousands of people in holiday attire, while flags and decorations lent a festive appearance to public and private buildings.

In general, all features of the ceremony occurred as promptly as could be expected when so elaborate a programme was to be carried out.

The sons of the Prince of Wales and party were the first to arrive at Buckingham Palace.

Accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, Princes Albert, Victor and George of Wales, and the magnificently uniformed officers of the Prince of Wales's household, they drove up to the palace in state carriages drawn by richly caparisoned horses at 11.30, and were received with hearty cheers by the vast throngs gathered about the palace entrance.

Here they awaited the arrival of the Queen and the Earl of Fife with his court and staff, Mr. Horace Farquhar, who made their appearance at 11.50.

The Queen was attended by all the great officers of state and the officers of her household, with the exception of the Lord Chamberlain, who was excused from attendance on account of his bereavement by the loss of his third son.

The Queen's party, with its escort of the Royal Guards, made a brilliant spectacle. The Earl of Fife was dressed in the full Highland costume of his clan.

Just at noon the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the bride, drove up in the State carriage used by the Queen on occasions when she has opened Parliament in person.

The procession to the chapel was quickly made up and moved in a gorgeous array to the doors, which were thrown open at their approach.

When inside the chapel the Queen was escorted to the royal seat prepared for Her Majesty.

The Earl of Fife took up his position at the right of the altar and the Princess Louise, of Wales, at the left, while the march from "Tannhäuser" pealed forth from the great organ.

the collar was of the Medici style and the sleeves, which reached to the elbow, were trimmed with rare old lace. Her wreath of orange blossoms was fastened at the left shoulder and carried across below the right. About the waist, and serving as a decoration to the skirts of her gown, was another wreath of orange blossoms. The veil was of point de gaze.

The bridesmaids' gowns were of point de gaze, and the Bishops of London and of St. Alban, and the sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal, who were to officiate at the ceremony, and who had been waiting within the altar rails since 11.45, began the service at 12.15.

The bride was given away by her father, the Prince of Wales, the Bishops of London and of St. Alban, and the sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal, who were to officiate at the ceremony, and who had been waiting within the altar rails since 11.45, began the service at 12.15.

At the close of the ceremony the Archbishop of Canterbury addressed the newly-married pair in a few happily chosen words. The full choral service was used, and the music, which included a new wedding anthem expressly composed by Mr. Joseph Barnby, was under the general direction of Dr. Bridge, organist of Westminster Abbey, assisted by Mr. Jekyll, organist of the Chapel Royal, St. James's, and the choir of the latter church.

At the close of the service the Queen and the Princess of Wales advanced to the altar rails and, meeting the newly-wedded pair, kissed the bride.

Then, as the organ broke forth into Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," the procession was again formed to the drawing-room of the palace, where the marriage register was signed and attested by the signatures of the royal wedding party.

The wedding breakfast followed, the guests being seated in the supper room with the Earl of Fife and his bride, while the royal family breakfasted in a separate room with the Queen.

It was noted that "The bride and bridegroom" and "The Queen."

When the guests rose from breakfast the bride and bridegroom, escorted by the Prince and Princess of Wales, the King of Greece, the Crown Prince of Denmark and officers of the household of the Prince of Wales returned to Marlborough House via Constitutional Hill, Piccadilly and St. James's.

The streets through which the procession passed were packed to their utmost in every direction, and the bride and bridegroom, with their attendants, who could be obtained, with vast throngs who cheered the royal couple again and again, and manifested every form of delight at sight of the beautiful and happy bride.

On the route the sun showed itself at intervals and added to the enjoyment and festivity of the occasion.

The programme of the whole ceremony was extraordinarily free from delays or clashes of any sort, and this is largely attributed to the precise programme which had been drawn up for the ceremony in all its details.

Every one knew beforehand exactly his or her place and function, so that each event followed with absolute smoothness.

The programme was printed, and a richly-bound copy was given to each guest to be retained as a souvenir of the event.

It has been estimated that the presents to the royal bride to be valued at $1,000,000 in value, the jewels alone reaching nearly that sum.

Fully a quarter of the whole is represented in gifts from the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Rothschilds and from Lord Fife.

The groom's gifts to his bride included a tiara and two necklaces, all of diamonds, most artistically got up and of immense value.

The bride's royal parents also gave her a tiara of diamonds, and from other sources came necklaces, pendants, rings and other jewelry, also fine gold and silverware, hats, clocks and articles almost innumerable.

Lord Tennyson sent his poems and Gladstone his cigarette case, smoking sets, drinking cups and articles of substantial furniture.

A present from Henry Irving was a silver drinking cup in the form of a kneeling Egyptian.

The groom also received many valuable gifts—cigarette cases, smoking sets, drinking cups and articles of substantial furniture.

CAROLIN'S SAY, DEAD IN A SEWER.

The Condemned Murderer Sends a Hot Protest from His Cell.

He Is a Poor Man, He Writes, and Is Consequently Doomed to Die.

A Letter to "The Evening World" Expressing Many Emotions.

The Story of His Crime and the Verdict of the Jury.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

Will you be kind to me and publish these few lines in THE EVENING WORLD?

I am an innocent man, sentenced to be hanged the 23d of August next.

Now, I want to say to you that I have to go unjustly out of this world, only because I am a poor man.

A poor man don't get any justice in this country.

I know some murderers, who were guilty of the crime, and they are walking the streets to-day in New York. Why? Because they had plenty of money, which goes to show that there is one law in this country for the rich man, but no just one for the poor man.

The poor people always hang or go to State Prison for long terms or for life, while the rich murderers go free altogether.

I say so because I know some of these guilty rascals.

They have been here during my confinement, and they were acquitted on trial; and so were a good many before them.

Now, I am entirely innocent of the crime charged against me.

What I did do I admitted on my trial, and I could do no more.

I made a good and true statement, but still it had no effect.

There were three women witnesses and an expert doctor, and they swore my innocent life away by infamous, blasted lies, for all they said they had to say.

I am sure they all committed perjury.

If I had the means to do so I could send them all to prison for perjury, but as I am a poor man I can do nothing.

All that is left for me is to suffer the death penalty on the gallows—an honest and innocent man, as God knows.

He knows I am innocent and I am sure he will let me die peacefully and admit me to heaven like all good Christians.

And these living folks who swore my innocent life away I am sure they will go to hell whenever they may die.

For such brutes as they are there is no room in heaven. Respectfully,

CHAS. F. CAROLIN.

The above letter was received at THE EVENING WORLD office to-day.

Ferdinand Carolin was found guilty of killing his wife, Bridget, who was his second wife, and who was thirty years old, and lived in a back room at 47 Stanton street when the tragedy occurred.

O'DAY IS SIGNED.

He Will Appear as a Giant in Monday's Game.

Fielder Lyons Also Secured from the Late Jersey City.

Manager Powers and the Pick of His Men Sold to Rochester.

Pitcher O'Day, late of the Washingtons, and Lyons, the outfielder of the Jersey City team, signed New York contracts this afternoon.

Both men will accompany Giants to Washington and will play for the Senators on Monday.

Lyons will probably be placed in right field. The deal whereby Manager Powers and the pick of his Jersey team are to be transferred to Rochester was consummated this morning in the office of the Sporting Times.

President Day, Manager Powers and President Leonard, of Rochester, were present. To-morrow the Jersey City Club will take leave of the team, and will be disbanded.

What Rochester pays for those players is not known, but Mr. Day is to be congratulated upon securing his connection with the Jersey Club at any price.

NO NEW YORK GAME TO-DAY.

THE NEW POLO GROUNDS IN A STATE OF DEMORALIZING DAMPNESS.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
NEW YORK, July 27.—Everybody who looked at this morning's weather took it for granted that baseball was knocked out for the day in New York.

When the rain let up, however, toward afternoon, there were thoughts of a possible game, and a few determined cranks wended their way up to the grounds.

No score cards came, though, and so small was the crowd and so discouragingly wet were the grounds that after a little while at clearing up and preparing for play an amicable agreement was reached to postpone the game.

The Washingtons leave for home this evening. The Giants start for Washington at the same hour to-morrow.

The Senators will play two games in one day when they next visit here.
